

JUMBO
BOOK
1933

To

Dean Clarence Russell Skinner

the newly appointed Dean of Crane Theological School who, since his association with the college from 1914, has striven to further the progress of Tufts by his untiring efforts—who is well-liked by his students, and is well-travelled—who has a wide understanding of human nature and of men—who is a leader in the modern church trend towards liberalism—this Jumbo Book of 1933 is gladly dedicated.

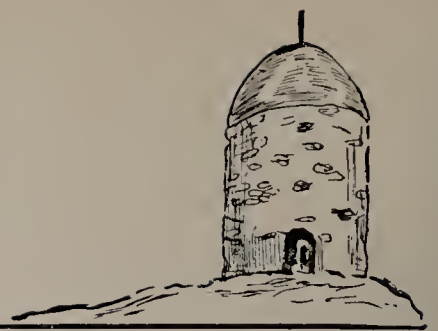

FOREWORD

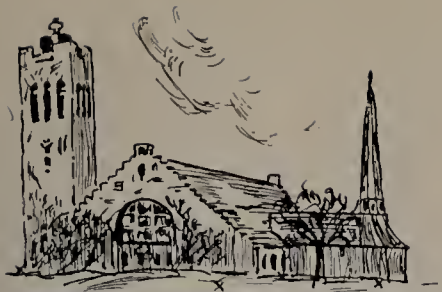

The editors of this 1933 Jumbo Book have attempted to portray within these pages a record of the life, the atmosphere, and the spirit of this eighty-first year of Tufts College, which they hope will be received with due appreciation of the task which has been before them, remembering the depressing economic circumstances which have caused them to curtail the quantity but not the quality of this book.

JOHN ALBERT COUSENS
A.B., LL.D.

John Albert Cousens, our President and our Exemplar. A man of keen business sense and of deep and genuine sympathy and kindness. Practical and at the same time friendly. Laboring ceaselessly for us as he works for the good name of our Alma Mater. Our benefactor and the deserving recipient of our esteem and affection.

The President's Message

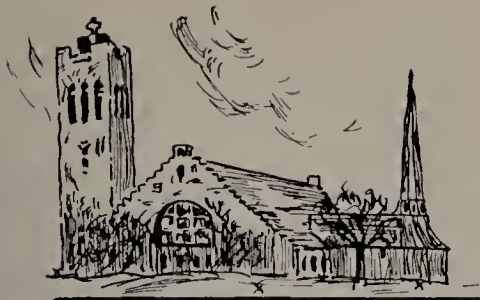

TO THE EDITOR OF THE 1933 JUMBO BOOK:

It is good news that even in the midst of a major economic disturbance the JUMBO BOOK is to be published as usual. The college annual by its pictures and by its text serves as an important chronicle of passing events which become of increasing historical interest. A year without its JUMBO BOOK would be a misfortune.

You have been good enough to arrange that in your publication space may be found for this letter. I would use the privilege to impress upon the readers of the JUMBO BOOK the importance of the personnel of the student body as a factor in the total educative effects of college experience. The influence, both positive and negative, of each student upon his fellows and in turn of the whole group upon each individual is of very real consequence. The intangibles and imponderables which from their very nature cannot be measured with precision but which to a large extent determine the difference between success and failure of a college depend primarily upon the character of the student body. It follows, therefore, that it is the duty of every man and woman—graduate and undergraduate—of Tufts College to be unremitting in an effort to make sure that every promising boy and girl of his acquaintance is informed of the advantages which Tufts College has to offer and is aware of the value of a college education. The consciousness of this obligation should be present at all times, and there should be an especial urge to discharge it in these days when, because of widespread economic failure and acute social distress, educational values tend to be obscured.

Very truly yours,
JOHN A. COUSENS,
President

The History of the Class of 1933

There is no need for me to recount the many achievements of the class of 1933. These shall never be forgotten by anyone who has come in contact with us—and I refer especially to the class of '34. But there are a few highlights in our history that may not be known to everyone.

To begin with, our freshman banquet left an indelible impression on the minds of many, including the hostess at Childs' Old France, the traffic officer at Tremont and Boylston streets, the "bouncer" at another restaurant, and the sophomores who welcomed us back to the Hill. Incidentally, we thank them now for allowing us to get into our old clothes before the dust began to fly. If ever a class was given a good initiation into Tufts, we were that class. But with a successful banquet under our belts, and a few pains and aches elsewhere, we began to make history for Tufts. And who couldn't be successful with such officers as Pedulla, Costello, Hymanson, Watson, and Russell for our freshman year? These men were fine leaders, as our officers in the subsequent three years proved to be.

Let us look back for a moment on our good, perhaps outstanding, athletic record as freshmen. Losing only one football game and winning a majority of games in the other sports is something that goes down in our history as a worthy achievement. In looking over the pictures of our freshman teams we see men who have now developed into outstanding men at Tufts. Space does not even permit me to list these men, but their records and our memories of them will never fade.

To continue the general trend of athletics we find about one hundred of our members becoming swimming instructors during their sophomore year,—instructing the freshmen in that art down by the Alewife Brook. That was as good a "rope pull" as was ever pulled in our estimation. No wonder the scene of this activity has changed to the football field.

The following men became our officers during our second year: Pedulla, Costello, Hymanson, Miller, and Andruszkiewicz. Under these men we emerged into every line of activity in as brilliant a fashion as any class ever has. Several men were placed on varsity teams as soon as they could don suits. In football alone, seven of our members won a varsity "T" in their sophomore year. Moreover, the general consensus of opinion supports us in believing that the class of 1933 has been instrumental in raising the high quality of extra-curricular activities at Tufts. The men worked with only one purpose in mind—the betterment of the college. This one idea has probably been best exemplified by the lack of so-called "fraternity politics" in our elections. The class has always selected the men they wanted and has been satisfied with the results.

The success of our class was continued in its junior year by the election of Pedulla, Costello, Hymanson, Ricketts, Andruszkiewicz, and McNiff as officers, and also a strong Ivy Society. The mention of Junior day and the Prom bring back memories never to be forgotten. It was on this occasion that the real beauty and convenience of the new Cousens Gymnasium was first realized.

JUMBO BOOK 1933

Cliffie Dow, the President of Ivy, met with tough luck in the second semester when he broke his leg while playing interfraternity basketball. Cliffie missed all the Junior Day activities for which he had been the prime factor in the preparations. However, as President of Tower Cross, and Chairman of Class Day Committee, he can make up for lost time. At the end of our junior year Andy, our trusty marshal, gained considerable moral support for the class on the occasion of the 1932 Class Day. I refer to his acceptance of the gift from the outgoing class marshal. Poor Andy! he could do nothing but accept it.

A good many students and "grads" were disappointed on our Junior Day to find that the customary Horribles' Parade had been abolished. Amusing incidents, peculiar to this old tradition, are far too many to relate, but we hope that the baseball game between the Seniors and the Faculty will fill in the gap left by the ludicrous antics of amateur buffoons and freaks.

Dignified Seniors! In our final year we elected Jerry Costello as President, Johnny Chace, Vice-President, Johnny Watson, Treasurer, Jack Ricketts, Secretary, Andy, Marshal, and "yours truly" as Historian. As seniors we are looking forward to that final week in June when we will get together, as a class, and conclude our collegiate careers in the most fitting manner.

By way of summary, and as a means of indicating the progress of the class, particularly along athletic lines, we might review very briefly the situation as it presents itself during our senior year. The football team established an enviable record of only one defeat in eight games, and that to Brown who boasted her best record in several years. Such names as Captain Cochrane, Clayman, Clark, Uanna, and Hymanson make us realize how well represented our class was on the gridiron.

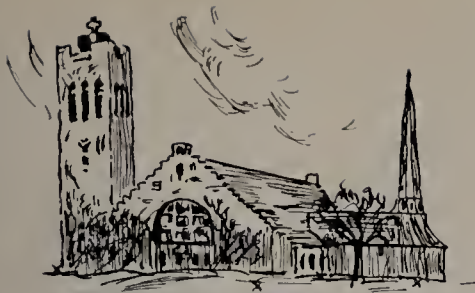

Basketball, wrestling, baseball, track, and the other sports also find a large percentage of their squads consisting of members of the class of '33. Hymanson, Ingraham, and Andy were prominent in basketball. Jerry Costello led the track team as its captain and guiding spirit. Captain Story and Jack O'Brien were important units in the New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Championship Team. Captain Clayman, ex-captain Kaese, Andy, and Ingraham will all look good on the baseball team. Squash has been played for the first time at Tufts and although nearly all the undergraduates are just learning the game, a great interest in the sport has developed. Harold Kaese has again shown his athletic ability by being "number one" man on the team throughout the season. We sincerely hope that the rapid development of this sport at Tufts will continue in the succeeding years.

We are certain that our Class Day activities will be well taken care of by the Committee composed of Dow, Sweetser, and Charnock. Furthermore, we are sure that our orators, Miller and Howarth, will provide entertainment on the occasion.

At the time of press this history is necessarily incomplete, but we all realize that merely the first chapter has been written. The remaining chapters will no doubt hold even more interesting experiences. When we gather together at our future reunions we can rightfully look back on four years of college in which we have not only developed as individuals but also as a group.

The History of the Class of 1933 at Jackson

Can anyone who has ever been a freshman at Jackson forget those awful pre-registration days when crowds of poor unsuspecting girls are herded around by a few upperclassmen, examined by doctors and nurses, numbered and photographed in lines like the traditional monkeys, till you're not sure whether you're entering an insane asylum or a prison? But those were thrilling days nonetheless, for there was the Freshman Reception where you were tagged and ushered through the line by charming Tufts seniors, and then led off to meet your own classmates. We, as a class, experienced something that year, however, which succeeding freshman classes have missed, perhaps fortunately, for that year first semester rushing was still the thing. The seemingly over-friendly attitude of the upperclassmen only added to our bewilderment as we dashed from party to party, but it wasn't long before we found out. When we finally became settled to some degree, we elected temporarily Eileen Campion as President, Dorcas Billings as Vice-President, Nancy Adams as Secretary, Dorothy Childs as Treasurer, Ruth Malone as Marshal and Elizabeth Macomber as Historian. In January the only change that was made was in the vice-presidency, Gertrude Quinby being elected.

In sports we organized an excellent basketball team which played a game with the Wheaton seconds and defeated them. We even won the class championship. "Camp" and Ruth Behrend offered considerable competition to the more seasoned tennis players of Jackson, making the varsity team. Ruth was defeated only in the finals of the Jackson annual tennis tournament.

Another member of our class of whom we were very proud was Nyleen Newton, some of whose poems were published in the first number of the Tuftonian, and she has been becoming better known each succeeding year.

On Jackson Day we piloted our little sub-freshmen through long lines of fellow-sufferers who were waiting to be interviewed by faculty members, to baseball and tennis games, and finally to the play in the Gym which was our very own play. I don't know whether our visitors appreciated "Heathen-like" or not, but we were proud to discover three talented actresses in Beatrice Capodilupo, Betty Davis and Arlene Parks.

The next fall we returned to the Hill feeling very experienced and immediately tried to look most sophisticated to the new frosh. But it was rather hard enforcing rules. Our greatest difficulty came on the night of the Freshman Sing when we sat around the table and tried to keep straight faces. We didn't know then what it meant to be a sophomore and how very humble we would feel at the end of the year.

That year saw the production of an operetta, "The Rose and the Ring," by the Jackson and Tufts Glee Clubs in which one of our classmates, Alma Strout, was starred in the role of Betsinda. Even if other members of the cast were better known that was no reason for the reviewers to neglect her. We attended the usual round of teas and evening parties and cheered lustily for the various Tufts teams all that year and looked forward to our Junior year.

JUMBO BOOK 1933

It came none too soon and went by much too fast, but we managed to cram it pretty full and had a wonderful time doing it. The big event of the year was the opening of the new gym—an event we had all been looking forward to, mostly because we had remembered seeing Prexy conquer the steam shovel on its site the year before. We were also hoping the authorities would relent and let us have a dance or two there. As a matter of fact, they did, and after the All Around Club had tried the place out, we had our Junior Prom in the basketball arena; but that was one of the later events of the year.

Billy Pierce managed the hockey team successfully. Beatrice Capodilupo and Kay Holcomb were featured in two Three P's plays, especially in "Cock Robin." Ruth Behrend distinguished herself on the varsity tennis team by winning all her matches. For the Freshman-Junior Dance Goddard Gym was decorated to represent Noah's Ark, and Sylvia Ransom was largely responsible for its success.

Then came Junior Day and the Prom! It was a very successful day! Even the weather was favorable, but there isn't space here to mention all the Juniors who were rewarded at the ceremony in the chapel. Anyway we weren't disappointed in our classmates. Dorcas Billings was chosen president of the class, Eileen Campion became the head of Student Government, Nyleen Newton editor-in-chief of the Tuftonian and Ruth Behrend president of the All Around Club, all for the following year. Of course we finished the year by giving our moral support to the Seniors at the most crucial moment in their college career.

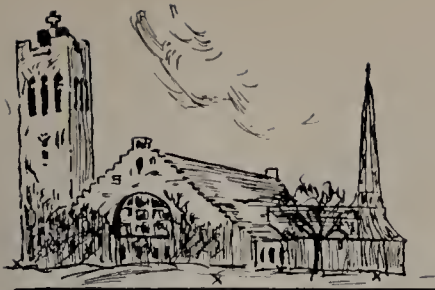

And now we're Seniors and what have we got to look forward to? The army of the unemployed, which the last year's seniors were worried about, doesn't seem to be much diminished, and its ever increasing numbers make us feel very queer at times. In the meantime we're making the most of this year and trying to attend our classes regularly even if the chapel bell doesn't ring to guide us. However, it is better that we miss a class or two this year than that the chapel tower should crumble next year.

So far this year three members of the class have distinguished themselves in dramatics. Isabelle Hallin and Beatrice Capodilupo had leading parts in "Androcles and the Lion" and "Uncle Vanya" respectively. Mary Perkins, on the other hand, has tried almost every department of production, and Professor Morse considers her quite an authority. Something new was attempted this year in the form of an Activities Tea at which all the organizations on the Hill in which Jackson is represented had booths offering information concerning their functions. The freshmen turned out in a body and appeared to be quite interested.

Looking back on our class as it entered Jackson in 1929 and reviewing those years, we come suddenly to the realization that six of our members have left us for married life. Evidently college girls do still marry! The first to leave us were Charlotte Seavey and Sylvia Ransom. In the fall we missed the beautiful Gertrude Laing from our midst, and soon we heard of the marriages of Nancy Adams and Dorothy Childs. Jean Lowery was the last one to leave us. Certainly this unusual number from one class doesn't seem to indicate hard times ahead. Good luck to all of you!

Pen, Paint, and Pretzels once again went to G. B. Shaw for their first production of the 1932-33 season. The play selected was his famous religious satire "Androcles and the Lion." The play, typically Shavian, is overflowing with dazzling lines and a humor that if not sarcastically done seems to fall flat or is decidedly slap-stick. A college group is many times adversely criticized for attempting the production of a play of this nature, for it is so diverse from the type of work expected to be within the scope of an amateur group. This play was so well presented from the point of view of both stage technicians and exacting playing critics that hearty praise was the keynote of all reviews. Several professionals of note congratulated Professor Morse, the faculty director, and the whole group on the beauty and strength of the entire production. The veterans participating in the play bettered all expectations, but the feature of the presentation was the remarkable contributions by newcomers to our stage, many of them freshmen without previous experience. The players seemed to steep themselves in the excellent atmosphere furnished by the technical staff, and they played with so much reality that the audience could not help but get a breath of old Rome, and none of Shaw's subtlety failed to reach the audience.

Chekhov’s “Uncle Vanya” was selected for the second production of the season. This is a play that only a season ago won coast-to-coast approval for its enactment by a company of players starring Lillian Gish. Again, the dramatics society had chosen a play that took a great deal more than average amateur ability. Chekhov, here, attempts to give us a peek into the boredom and bleakness of a certain social strata in old Russia. It is very difficult for American college students to step from the atmosphere of gaiety and variety, and the general carefree attitude that forms their campus life, into parts where they have to portray lives and create for the audience both a mental and visual picture that is in such direct antipathy with their own. However, the cast, well chosen, with the excellant help afforded them by the technicians did this very thing. In fact, they did it so well that the audience complained of the depressed feeling with which they left the theatre. This, however, formed the basis for much severe criticism of the dramatic society from both the faculty and the student body not because of faulty production, but because of choice of the play. It was generally believed that the plays presented on Hill should be a bit more delightful in their aspect, especially in respect to the undergraduate theatre-goers. In answer to this, the society circulated questionnaires among both faculty and student body with the object in view of finding just what type of production was wanted. There was an abundant harvest of answers, but little could be ascertained because of the diversity of opinion.

Finally, Pen, Paint, and Pretzels decided that for their final production of the season they would return to the first policy of the society and stage an original three-act play. Theodore Packard, a member of the organization, has proven himself more than an embryo play-wright by giving us a smart three-act comedy mystery with good old Cape Cod as the background. “Love Among the Spooks” is the title,

One Hundred Twenty-two and the lines are written with the adroitness of an old master. A fine cast has been chosen and, if the production can be judged by the early rehearsals, the world-premiere on April 22nd, will furnish the theatre-going public of the Hill with as delightful a play as has been seen here in a number of years. Tufts College String Quartet

Since 1905, the Tufts College String Quartet has advanced in prestige to the extent that it is one of the best known of the musical clubs in the College. Besides giving chapel concerts during the year, usually assisted by well known singers and musicians, such as Dorothy Robbins and Donald Van Wart, the Quartet accompanies the Glee Club on its concert trips. Some of the selections played were taken from Haydn, Verdi, Saint-Saens, and Beethoven.

Clayman Scoring against Massachusetts State

JUMBO BOOK 1933

Five victories, two ties, and one defeat is the numerical record of one of Tufts' most colorful and outstanding football teams of the past few years. It was a season in which anything might have happened with over seven inexperienced men starting the season on the first eleven. It is a tribute to our coaches that one of the best lines in small college football could be developed in one fall, with sophomore men playing the big roles and stepping easily into the shoes of the seasoned veterans, who had graduated the spring before. It was a year of experimenting and shifting, and yet one with five glorious victories to the credit of Jumbo. There was one defeat, at the hands of the powerful Brown Bear from Providence. There were two tie games. Boston University rose to the height of her season to deadlock Tufts at 9 all in one of the greatest games ever played at Weston; while Bowdoin scored herself a moral victory when she held the Brown and Blue to a scoreless tie by sheer courage and spirit.

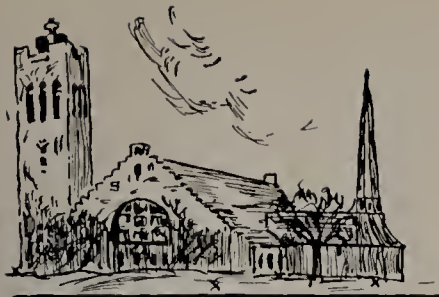

This fall saw many colorful football features come to the fore. Captain Donald Cochrane set up his iron man record of playing in every varsity game for three seasons, twenty two of them, and ten without any relief. Don failed to start in only one game after joining the squad his sophomore year, and that was at Mass. State his junior year when he was suffering from a leg injury; he played the entire second half in spite of it. We haven't the space to relate all the aspects of this machine, noted especially for its team work, but can not pass over such outstanding features as Sam Clayman, spark plug of the Jumbo team for three years, leading goal kicker of the nation, and credited with only one less game than his captain; the kicking of sophomore Johnnie Grinnell, which paved the way for several victories; the play of senior Jack O'Brien at tackle; the star end play of Fred Oliver; the ability of "Fighting Jack McGonagle," captain elect, and star guard all season; the line play of Roy Woodworth, Ed Batchelder, Ben Carlyn, Johnnie Parkhurst; and the work of Bill Staffon, Ed Monier, John McMahon, Pat Clark, Bud Uanna, and Harry Hymanson in the backfield.

Tufts opened the season with an easy victory over Middlebury as Sammy Clayman scored all nine points for the Brown and Blue. The team showed plenty of flaws in this first game, which was to be expected as only four of the men had ever played together before. The work of the line proved much stronger than expected and this called for much enthusiasm. It was the following week, however, that Tufts really showed her strength by soundly trouncing the highly touted Bates team, which had held the Yale Bulldog to a scoreless tie. It was in this game that sophomore Johnnie Grinnell first showed his power, his three field length punts paving the way for two touchdowns and keeping the Bates team out of domestic territory. Staffon and Clayman accounted for the Jumbo scores.

The next week, with injuries riddling our backfield, a stubborn Bowdoin team fought Tufts to a standstill at Whittier Field. The Brown University team proved itself too powerful for the Jumbo at Providence the following week. The spirit and fight shown by our team at Providence excited much favorable comment from newspaper reporters and spectators. Conn. Aggie was an easy story this year with Tufts superior in every department of the game. Lowell Textile was stubborn, but the homecoming day crowd spurred our team on to an 18-7 victory at the Oval.

.One Hundred Thirty

JUMB0 BOOK 1933

The last two games of the season proved to be the most spectacular. Boston University fought its way into the lead late in the game, and it was Sam Clayman's dropkick, which bounced over the crossbar, that tied things up for Tufts. Boston University men claimed it the best game the Pioneers have played since the Weston Field was dedicated. The season closed successfully the following week when Tufts held Lou Bush scoreless for the second successive year, and defeated the old rival, Mass. State, by a 6-2 score.

In closing this story of Tufts sixth consecutive season without a defeat on the Oval, may we extend hearty congratulations to head coach Lewis F. Manly, line coach Herman Rachdorf, and backfield coach Charles Hingston, for the fine work done this year. John W. Watson, manager of the gridiron sport, also deserves much praise for his capable services. We wish all success for an undefeated season next year, with the brilliant sophomores and juniors of this year's team as a nucleus with which to work.

Jackson Athletic Association

The Jackson Athletic Association is one of the most active organizations at Jackson. Its purpose is to interest all students in athletic activities. The Athletic Association provides for intercollegiate competition in field hockey, basketball, swimming, and tennis. There is intramural competition in these sports, and also in track, archery, and golf.

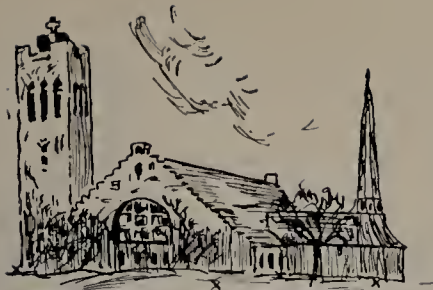

The executive board approves of all athletic activities and has charge of the point system and awards. This year the board is introducing new awards in the form of a felt emblem, an original emblem for the white blazer, and a white skin as an honorary as well as an athletic award.

In early fall the Constitution of the Athletic Association, compiled in 1931-1932, was voted upon and approved by the student body. In October the organization had a night picnic with one hundred and eighty students attending. In February the A.A. held a very successful skating party at the Boston Arena. The A.A. is planning another picnic for late spring.

Privately Printed

The 1933 JUMBO BOOK is a splendid example of a limited edition, privately printed.

The staff of this book and an increasing number of other private publishers have been turning to organizations which specialize in the production of fine brochures, magazines, and privately printed books. For more than a century The Andover Press has served such publishers, planning and printing class annuals, descriptive booklets, genealogies, and other quality publications.
